Imagination and Perspective-Taking

The cognitive capacity of imagination is mostly discussed in the context of creativity and art. However, imagination can serve as a source of justification and knowledge about quotidian, scientific and philosophical matters. In this talk, I present how the fact that while imagining we not only suppose that a certain counterfactual scenario obtains, but also put ourselves in specific experiential perspectives in such a scenario, helps explain what the distinctive epistemic contribution of imagination is.

Alle Interessierten, insbesondere auch Studierende, sind herzlich eingeladen.
